"Why Sugar-Free therapy should be provided in urine diseases" :

Patients with diabetes acquire urinary tract infections (UTIS) very often because hyper-glycemia (High blood sugar) results in increase sugar in the urine and becomes a friendly environment for the bacterial cultures to grow.

The glucose contents in urine from diabetics is significantly higher when compared to non-diabetics during glucose filtration in the kidneys. Higher glucose concentration in the urine provide an abundant source of nutrients for bacteria, which can proliferate and causes an infection.

As per, according to an article published in Diabetes Care in 2002, S.L. Gamiela and colleagues examined the association between diabetes and urinary tract infections.
